Anythink Perl Mack Debut Scheduled for Friday, May 6, 2011

Celebrate the Library's Reopening with an Anythink-style Garden Party

DENVER—April 13, 2011—Anythink Perl Mack, located at 7611 Hilltop Circle in Denver, will open its doors on Friday, May 6, for an Anythink-style garden party to celebrate its recent renovations. Community members will be amazed by the 1,800-square-foot addition and the building's modern new look. With the completion of the Anythink Perl Mack renovations, Rangeview Library District completes its capital construction project that included four new library buildings and three renovations.

The Anythink Perl Mack Debut takes place from 3-7 pm, and festivities include tours, refreshments catered by the Bagel Bakery and live music provided by the Blue Canyon Boys. The library will also be open for business, so guests can sign up for library cards or check out books.

The 1975 building received a full renovation and an addition of 1,800 square feet designed by Humphries Poli Architects, radically modernizing the existing facility with sustainable technology and vibrant library design. As a way to open up the library to the entire community, a new neighborhood entrance was added to the north side of the building along El Paso Boulevard. A children's pavilion on the west side of the building, teen space, computer lab, renovated program space and updated staff areas are just some of the new features. Along with a simplified parking lot, the south side of the building now includes a beautiful porch for all to enjoy.

Sustainable features of this renovated facility include geothermal heating and cooling, day lighting, use of recycled materials and cradle-to-cradle design, and the community garden opening this spring on the building's west side. Representatives from Denver Urban Gardens will be on hand at the debut to answer questions and accept plot reservations for Anythink Perl Mack's community garden.
