Anythink Announces Two New Additions to the Support Services Team

THORNTON, Colo.–May 25, 2011–Anythink Libraries has added two new members to its Support Services staff.

Mahala Evans, a Boulder native who recently returned from the East Coast, has been named Anythink’s development officer. Evans will work closely with the Rangeview Library Friends Foundation in this newly created position to drive Anythink’s fundraising efforts. A communications major from Boston College, Evans comes to Anythink with over 10 years of development experience with organizations such as the YWCA Boston, Conservation Law Foundation and Massachusetts School of Professional Psychology

Ken Devine recently started as the new writer/editor in Anythink’s communications department. He arrives by way of New York City and Nashville, but hails from Dayton, Ohio. With majors in mass communications and technical communication from Miami University, Devine offers a unique blend of writing skills with publications ranging from newsletters to instruction manuals to music reviews.

“Both Ken and Mahala are brilliant additions to the Anythink team,” says Anythink communications manager Stacie Ledden. “Their skill sets will help Anythink inspire creativity in its customers and provide exceptional service to the residents of Adams County.”
